

WILL SHOW BAD BLOOD.

Acrimonious Debate In the House Predicted on the Income Tax.

APPROPRIATION WILL PASS.

Senate Proceedings Awaiting the Decision of the Steering Committee Appointed in Caucus—Senator Morgan Talks Today on the Nicaragua Canal Bill—Features of the New Japanese Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The second week in the house promises to witness a fierce struggle over the income tax in connection with the appropriation to be incorporated in the urgent deficiency bill to provide for the collection of the tax, which begins Jan. 1, 1895. Mr. Sayres, chairman of the appropriations committee, intends to call up the bill tomorrow, after the railroad pooling bill is disposed of. Mr. Bartleson of New York is at the head of the opposition to the appropriation and, although the opposition is not considered strong enough to defeat the appropriation, it is expected that the debate will abound with acrimonious references to the late election and that much bad blood will be manifested. The consideration of the income tax appropriation may consume several days.

Today is District of Columbia day and tomorrow the fate of the railroad pooling bill will be decided. As soon as the urgent deficiency bill, which will follow, is out of the way, it is the intention to bring forward the fortification appropriation bill. The Nicaragua bill will not be brought up this week. Thursday next the Williams-Settle North Carolina contest will be taken up. There is little doubt that Settle (Rep.), the sitting member, will retain his seat.

STEERING COMMITTEE.

It Is Expected to Soon Decide the Senate's Order of Business.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The week's programme in the senate will depend largely, if not entirely, upon the decision of the Democratic steering committee with reference to the order in which the bills preferred by the caucus are to be taken up. This point was left entirely to the steering committee, which Senator Gorman, its chairman, says will probably meet this afternoon. The committee will then or at some subsequent meeting decide whether the

SENATOR MORRILL.

Nicaragua canal bill, the bankruptcy bill, the New Mexico and Arizona bills, the Indian Territory bill or the resolution for the election of senators by the people shall have precedence. It is not supposed by anyone that the proposed currency bill will be given first place, for the reason that no currency bill has yet been formulated.

While the committee is undecided, Senator Morgan has improved his opportunity to press the claims of the Nicaragua bill and opened today's proceedings by calling it up and is making a speech explanatory of the merits of the bill. It is probable that this speech will consume the greater part of the day.

For the rest, Senator Morrill, as is his annual custom at the beginning of a congressional session, will give his views on some public question, probably national finances. Senator Hunter of Virginia has also given notice of a speech or Thursday on the establishment of a national university. It is also considered possible that there will be some executive work, especially if the Japanese treaty should be reported.

TREATY WITH JAPAN.

Her Courts and Laws Recognized and Substantial Advantages Gained.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The new treaty with Japan, which is likely to be acted upon soon, concedes to that country recognition as an enlightened, modern nation. All previous treaties have been based on the theory that the relics of eastern barbarism still remained with Japan. Accordingly, she was not allowed to conduct her own courts or to make her own tariff laws, but special treaty regulations were made to protect American litigants and American commerce in Japan on the presumption that the native laws would not afford adequate protection. Running throughout the new treaty are the concessions recognizing her courts and laws as ample for Americans as well as natives. This is the chief feature of the treaty.

On the other hand, the United States secures many substantial advantages. The missionaries, who make up such a very large class in Japan, are guaranteed freedom of worship and protection in that worship. The main concession, however, is that of Article II, by which Japan is opened up to American commerce. Heretofore Americans have been restricted to a few treaty ports in Japan. They could not reside or carry on business, or even travel in the interior. Now, however, every corner of the country is opened. The Japanese are given a similar right to settle throughout the United States, but care has been taken to provide that their coming must be subject to our alien and immigration laws.

The provision of the treaty that it must be ratified within six months makes it incumbent for the senate to act on it at the present session or the treaty will fall. There is every probability, however, that the senate will act promptly.

RAILROAD EARNINGS.

Interesting Showing From Reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The interstate commerce commission has just issued a preliminary report on the income and expenditures of railways in the United States for the year ending June 30, 1894. Returns from 570 operating companies cover the operations of 149,559.21 miles of line, or about 85 per cent of the total operated mileage in the United States. The gross earnings from the operation of the 149,559.21 miles represented were $949,639,075, of which $500,137,142 were from passenger service, $617,958,498 from freight service, and $22,420,298 other earnings from operation, receipts from telegraph, use of cars, switching charges, etc. The operating expenses were $643,428,337, leaving net earnings of $306,210,744.

Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—House proceedings Saturday were given to talk. Mr. Clark of Missouri avowing his purpose to talk to death the bill to retire incapacitated officers of the revenue service. The pooling bill came in for a share and notice was given that the previous question would be called tomorrow.

FOOTBALL BRUTALITY.

New York Preacher Says the Game Is Worse Than Bull Fights or Prize Fights.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Speaking on the subject of athletics, Rev. Madison C. Peters said last night in his pulpit: "We go to extremes in everything. We make hard work out of our holidays and we are always glad to get home after the dissipation of our recreations. The ball game, which a few years ago promised to do so much for the physical manhood of the overworked, has been speedily degraded into a craze, so that the game as now conducted has become the great national nuisance. I am an enthusiast for athletics. The gymnasium of today will prevent the dyspepsia of tomorrow, but I protest against smashing noses, breaking fingers or kicking souls out of men's bodies in the name of athletics. The gladiatorial shows of Rome, the bull fights of Spain and our prizefights are refinement compared with the football brutality of today. Every sensible man commends a moderate use of games and sports, but have we not gone to extremes in our play? We spend so much time and money on our sports that the question arises—Whither is this tendency leading?"

UNDER A TRAIN.

Brother and Sister Fatally Crushed at a Chicago Suburban Depot.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—While waiting at the Lyons depot of the Burlington road a party of young people were struck by the suburban train, one young lady being killed outright, her brother perhaps fatally injured and another brother narrowly escaping.

Miss Ida Schultz, aged 22, killed outright. Edward Schultz, her brother, internal injuries which will probably result fatally.

Another brother, Emil, barely escaped by jumping out of the way of the moving train. The young people got confused at the depot and in avoiding one train stepped before another.

THEY WERE RIVALS.

Rejected Suitor Swears Vengeance and Meets Death as a Result.

WACO, Tex., Dec. 10.—Quite a sensation was caused this afternoon at Little River, a station 10 miles south, by the shooting of Section Foreman James P. Huddleson by Edward P. Via. Via is agent at that point and hails from Salisbury. They were rivals for the affections of Miss Willie D. Waller of that place. Huddleson was rejected by the young lady and swore vengeance.

Increase of German Exports.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Frank H. Mason, consul general of the United States at Frankfurt-on-the-Main, reports that the exports to America from his consular district for October and November were valued at $692,518, an increase of 29 per cent over the value of the goods exported during the corresponding months of 1893.

No More Prizefights In Denver.

DENVER, Dec. 10.—Chief of Police Armstrong has decided to allow no more prizefights in Denver. The pug who have been giving many so-called exhibitions will be jailed as vagrants if they do not leave town.

Seven Negroes Hurt.

PLAQUEMINE, La., Dec. 10.—A switch engine with a train of cars spread the railroad rails near here, causing several cars to leave the track. A number of negroes were caught by the falling cars and seven of them were hurt, some perhaps fatally.

Lady Somerset and Living Pictures.

BOSTON, Dec. 10.—Lady Henry Somerset, now visiting in this city, emphatically denies that she will organize a crusade against living pictures, saying: "There are plenty of citizens, wise and vigilant, who will watch over the morals of this land."

ADMISSION OF GUILT.

Blixt, the Ging Case Janitor, Says He Fired the Fatal Shot.

MAKES TWO CONFESSIONS.

In the First He Accused Hayward of Having Killed the Woman and Turning the Corpse Over to Him For Disposal. An Accepted Story Supplemented by a More Startling Statement.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—Blixt, the accused janitor in the Ging murder case, called the mayor and chief of police to his cell last night, after having made one confession implicating Hayward, and said that he fired the fatal shot himself. He says that Hayward had persuaded Miss Ging that "green goods" could be easily circulated through the medium of her business as a dressmaker. She, having always had an insane desire to get rich easily, fell in with the idea. The night of the murder Hayward had told her that he had arranged for her to meet a "green goods" dealer on the outskirts of the city. They started off on the ride together. About 12 blocks from the Ozark flats they met Blixt.

Hayward induced her to let Blixt drive her to the place of meeting, with the assurance to her that he would himself follow immediately in another buggy and be present at the meeting. Blixt then drove the woman out to the old Excelsior road and called her attention to a passing object. As she turned her head to look out of her side of the buggy he shot her. The body was then disposed of as stated in the first confession. Hayward, instead of following, returned to the Ozark flats and afterward went to the theater.

HIS FIRST CONFESSION.

Story Accusing Hayward Readily Believed by Police.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—If the confession voluntarily made by Claus A. Blixt, the janitor of the Ozark flat, in the presence of Mayor Enstis, the county attorney and the chief of police yesterday is true, Harry T. Hayward fired the shot that killed Catherine Ging and Blixt aided him in disposing of the body. When Blixt had decided that he wanted to unburden his mind he was driven to the scene of the tragedy, on the old Excelsior road. Upon returning Blixt sat in the mayor's office and told the whole horrible story. He told it in broken English, and it was necessary at times for him to explain the exact meaning of his language.

Blixt says the first criminal conversation with Hayward was in regard to either the holding up or the killing of a Chicago man who had loaned Hayward $400, the object being to regain possession of evidence of Hayward's indebtedness. Blixt refused to go into it, and says that Hayward went to Chicago himself about Nov. 3. Upon returning from Chicago Hayward broached another scheme to him—that of setting fire to a barn. He induced Blixt to commit the act, thus securing a penitentiary hold on the man.

Planning Miss Ging's Death.

It was shortly after this that the scheme to murder Miss Ging was broached. Hayward told him she was completely in his power and that she would do anything he told her to. When the scheme of killing Miss Ging was broached, Hayward told him that by killing Miss Ging he would regain possession of $7,000 which he had given her, and in addition would make $10,000, as she had "willed" her life insurance to him. He offered Blixt one-fifth of the amount to commit the deed. Blixt still refused to have anything to do with the crime and threatened to quit then and there, whereupon Hayward stated he would do it himself, saying: "I would as soon kill her as I would a dog."

This was about a week ago. In his confession Blixt makes no reference to the ride which Miss Ging took Nov. 27, Hayward's first plan, after he concluded to commit the crime himself, was outlined to Blixt. This was to take her riding, hit her over the head with a piece of T rail concealed on his person, throw the body out against a curbing, start his horse on a gallop and tell a story of a runaway accident, but this plan failed.

Blixt's Part In the Crime.

On Monday night Hayward met Blixt and by threats, persuasions and promises of money induced him to be a partner in the crime to the extent of aiding in the disposal of the body and make it easy for Hayward to commit the crime and return unobserved to the city. Hayward directed Blixt to take a streetcar on Hennepin avenue, opposite the flats, at 6:50 and proceed to Lake street, across the foot of the lake, to a point where the Excelsior road bends around on to the north side of the lake, and there to await his coming. At exactly 6:45 Hayward was in the hall of the flats, and when Blixt opened the door

"Now, hurry up and get down there. Everything is all right." Blixt followed out his instructions to the letter. He had been there about five minutes when he heard a shot and saw a carriage approach. As it drew up he recognized Hayward as the driver. Hayward said to him:

In the Buggy With a Corpse.

"It is all done. Jump in and drive slowly and give me plenty of time to get back to town, and do not leave her until you make sure she is dead."

Hayward got out of the buggy and Blixt got in. The woman was on the left hand side and the laprobe was thrown over her, completely covering her, from which it is evident that before firing the fatal shot Hayward pulled the robe up and held it so as to prevent the possibility of any blood spurring on to his clothing and to protect himself from the blood spots afterward while driving along the road. Blixt did not look at the woman, and the only way that he inferred she was dead was because she did not move. He drove along the Excelsior road for a mile, then turned around and a little later pulled Miss Ging's corpse out by the feet and left it on the road.

He then drove part way into the city, threw the reins between the whip and the dashboard, started the horse and stepped to the walk and walked to Lyndale avenue, where he took a car into the city. The horse, he says, started off slowly and then broke into a trot.

Hayward's Supposed Movements.

The police believe that on alighting from the buggy Hayward immediately ran across to Lyndale avenue, boarded a car for the city and went directly to the basement of the Ozark flats, where he met Mrs. Blixt, incidentally remarking that it was just 7:30. This was to strengthen his alibi. As a matter of fact, the time must have been 7:45. He then cut across lots to the house of C. J. Bartelson, two blocks away. Here he again called attention to the time. He then accompanied Miss Bartelson to the theater, arriving there directly after 8, where he was seen and recognized by dozens of people. It was his presence at the theater that has made the community believe it was impossible for Hayward to have done the shooting himself.

It is believed that when Hayward is confronted with Blixt's confession that he will break down and tell the story himself.

CLAYTON'S MURDER.

Old Crime Recalled by the Suicide of One Connected Therewith.

LITTLE ROCK, Dec. 10.—Another person whose name came into prominence in connection with the famous political murder case in which Hon. John M. Clayton was the assassin's victim, a crime that startled the entire country and has to this day remained shrouded in mystery, has come to a violent end. Word has been received announcing the suicide at Walla Walla, Wash., of J. A. Coblenz. Coblenz was sheriff of Conway county, Ark., at the time of the famous Breckinridge-Clayton contest, and it was he who warned Clayton on the day previous to the assassination not to remain at Plummerville.

"Mr. Clayton," Coblenz said that day, "don't remain in Plummerville. If you do you will be killed."

Whether or not the advice was given with any positive knowledge on Coblenz's part will never be known. Clayton paid no attention to the admonition, however, and that night a crime was committed which has puzzled detectives ever since.

A Walla Walla dispatch says Coblenz had been accused of malfeasance in office and was eating dinner when a warrant was served. He stepped to his private office in the state prison, where he was warden, and shot himself.

STOPPED AN ELOPEMENT.

Farmer Clayton Met and Killed His Daughter's Objectionable Lover.

HENDERSON, Ky., Dec. 10.—A shooting took place in Webster county Friday night in which John Clayton shot and killed Jesse Driver. Driver was a near neighbor of Clayton, and was a lover of his 14-year-old daughter. He had been forbidden to come on the Clayton farm, but persisted in his attentions to the girl. Friday Clayton learned of a plan agreed upon between Driver and his daughter to elope that night. As Driver approached the house in his buggy that night he was met by Clayton, shotgun in hand. What passed between them is not known, but yesterday Driver's dead body was found in the road where the meeting took place. Clayton fled.

SPACE SAVERS.

Wind and rain storm crippled telegraph and telephone wires in Oregon.

Lost Creek, Pa., undermined by a colliery, is slowly sinking and people are moving.

Bill Taylor, negro, has confessed murdering David Doty, a farmer near Richmond, Ky.

Ives beat Schaefer in the final game of their billiard match 630 to 456 and won the series by 3,600 to 2,831.

W. H. Venable of the Georgia senate and Speaker Fleming of the house are at odds and a duel is predicted.

Thousands of Denver people were turned away from the hall in which General William Booth preached yesterday.

Louis Peters of Chicago was murdered for $1,000 insurance. Sebastian Meyers and John Goetz are accused of the crime.

The pension bureau has ruled that hereafter pensions will be refused widows who have an income sufficient to support themselves.

Rev. Conrad Haney, prominent Chicago divine, has eloped with Mrs. George W. Brandt, wife of the manager of the Price Baking Powder company.

Atlantic and Pacific railroad engineers are complaining because their grand officers draw big salaries and will not allow them to strike when they want to.

Edwin Jordan and Lewis Jersey have confessed the murder of A. D. Barnes in Chicago. He was the man who was so horribly mangled, packed in a box and hid in a hole underneath the sidewalk.

ROBBERS' CAVE FOUND.

Dime Novel Story of Its Discovery In Porter County.

THIEVES TO BE CAPTURED.

One Lone Detective Has Discovered What Becomes of the Horses Stolen In Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan. Inscribed His Name on the Jail's Wall. General News of the State.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Dec. 10.—Developments in connection with a most daring series of horse robberies in this vicinity have thrown new light upon the long suspected thieves' resort in this county. For several years all northern Indiana and southern Michigan have experienced daring robberies. The past month the thefts have been so numerous and bold that a detective was put at work and he yesterday announced that he had discovered the headquarters of the gang in Porter county. In the hills of Westchester township he found a large cave, the entrance to which is so artfully concealed that a close search cannot reveal it to an outsider. It is fitted up almost like the veritable robbers' caves of the dime novel. Here the stolen property is taken and concealed until it can be safely taken away and disposed of. Arrangements are being made to surround the Westchester hills and capture the whole party.

MURDERED BY TRAMPS.

Two Men of Auburn Killed and Another Wounded—Effort at Capture.

POSTORIA, O., Dec. 10.—Four tramps who killed Arthur E. Brown and Henry Reese of Auburn, Ind., and wounded Henry Harris at Postoria Saturday were heard from at Deshler yesterday, where they pillaged a house. Their capture is now expected. Although Harris has seven bullets in his body, he was able to talk, but his recovery is still in doubt. The killings were for purposes of robbery.

WAS A FICKLE LOVER.

Forced to Tell That His Desertion Caused a Poor Girl's Suicide.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Dec. 10.—Bessie Ridenour, a pretty 17-year-old girl, died under mysterious circumstances. The coroner's investigation developed that death was the result of poison. It came to light that she had been jilted in a love affair and ended her misery in death. R. W. Ruff, an insurance man, testified that he was engaged to marry the girl, but had gone back on her after winning her. The girl has stood high in the community.

Roby's Track.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—Governor Matthews declares that he has not yet given up hope of being able to suppress the Roby racetrack, although there are little prospects of its being done by the usual process, the sentiment of people about the track being so largely in its favor. Attorney General Ketcham spent Saturday in making a personal inspection of the practices at the place. It is certain that the legislature will be asked to legislate against such places.

Perpetuating His Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—Sheriff Emmett of this county, who retires from office tonight, proud of the distinction he had won in being chosen to public office and anxious to leave a record of it for future generations, had inscribed on the handsome new jail building his name and date of service without consulting the county commissioners. The latter are mad about it and will compel the sheriff to remove the stone and replace it with another.

Jordan on Natural Gas.

KOKOMO, Ind., Dec. 10.—In a final visit here before his retirement as gas inspector Mr. Jordan said in an interview that he had been much misquoted as to the supply of the natural fuel. He does not now claim that there is immediate danger of the collapse of the supply, but says people have been needlessly sinful in its waste. It is his opinion that after gas will come oil, and the people will never go back to wood and coal.

Sample of Hoosier Strength.

LAFORTE, Ind., Dec. 10.—Willis Holmes of this county is a phenomenon in strength and if he grows to manhood promises to surpass Sandow. Although but four years old he weighs 85 pounds and easily carries his father, Charles Holmes, who weighs 175 pounds, across the room and does other wonderful feats of strength.

Publisher Under Arrest.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—James B. Wilson, one of the proprietors of The People, a paper which for a few weeks has devoted its columns to extraordinarily sensational matters, has been arrested on a United States warrant for using the mails in sending out obscene matter.

Three Unknown Tramps Killed.

LEBANON, Ind., Dec. 10.—A freight train of 23 cars ran into an open switch five miles east of this city Saturday and was partially derailed. Three unknown tramps who were staying a ride between two box cars were instantly killed.

Between the Hours.

WABASH, Ind., Dec. 10.—Between the hours of 3 and 4 o'clock Saturday and 8 o'clock Sunday night made raids on eight residences, robbing and injuring citizens here.

INDIANA PARAGRAPHS.

Elwood has located another tinplate mill which is to employ 1,000 hands.

Near Selma, Delaware county, a new 4,000,000-foot gas well has just been opened. Hughes' general store at Desoto was robbed of a wagonload of cutlery and hardware.

T. L. Davis, a New York traveling man, died in an Evansville hospital of appendicitis.

Walter Gibbs sued the Diamond Plate-glass company of Elwood for $10,000 for injury received. He didn't get a cent.

The Wabash board of county commissioners has refused to grant a license to three applicants to sell liquor at LaGrro. There is now no saloon in the place, but there are drug stores.

Mrs. John Brown, the bride of a Muncie glass blower, disappeared a month ago. She was found Saturday in the Kokomo jail awaiting sentence for living in a disreputable house. She denied knowledge of the character of the place and was ashamed to appeal to her husband for release. The fine was remitted.

LABOR PLATFORM.

What Is Likely to Result From the Federation Convention In Denver.

DENVER, Dec. 10.—Nearly all of the delegates have arrived to attend the convention of the American Federation of Labor which opened at 10 o'clock. Notwithstanding that delegates profess ignorance as to the adoption of a resolution favoring free coinage, it is very probable that such a resolution will meet with very little opposition. On the question of immigration some decided views are expected from the convention and a platform will doubtless be adopted having as a basis compulsory education; direct legislation; a legal work day; sanitary construction of workshops, mines and homes; liability of employer for injury to health of body or life; the abolition of the sweating system; municipal ownership of streetcars, gas and electric plants for public use; the nationalization of telegraph, telephone and railroads and mines; the principle of referendum in all legislation.

With the exception of the clause referring to the government ownership of railroads, telegraphs and telephones, this platform will probably be favorably received and adopted without discussion. This clause in itself is considered by many workmen to smack too much of socialism and is likely to cause no little opposition.

ROBBED THE COUNTY.

Officers Indicted For Systematically Planning Public Funds.

STOUT CITY, Ia., Dec. 10.—The grand jury just adjourned has created a tremendous sensation by returning 52 indictments, all but two or three against ex-county officials and members and ex-members of the board of supervisors, all charged with crookedness in office.

It is alleged that the crimes extend over a period of four years, and that during that time the county officers and the members of the board of supervisors have conspired together so successfully that the county has been robbed of nearly $200,000.

Mr. Wilson's Prophecy.

SEATTLE, Dec. 10.—Hon. George Hazard of Tacoma has made public a personal letter from Congressman Wilson in which he speaks of his recent defeat at the polls. "I do not allow myself to repine over my own reverses, and as to the general disaster I am confident that the people will soon learn that the Democratic party did not deserve any such chastisement at their hands and will come back to us as passionately as they seem to have left us."

Swedes Celebrate.

ROCK ISLAND, Ills., Dec. 10.—The three hundredth anniversary of the birth of Gustavus Adolphus, king of Sweden, was most fittingly observed by Augustana college. Thousands of sturdy sons of the northland settled in this vicinity made their way in great crowds to the college, where the memory of the great man was honored by appropriate exercises.

Report Feared by the Sultan.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—A dispatch to The Standard from Constantinople says that the sultan has not acquiesced in the mission of Consul Milo Jewett, who was selected by President Cleveland to inquire into outrages in Armenia. The sultan appears to fear the effect of an independent report to the Washington government.

Roasted by Electricity.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 10.—A telegraph wire parted last night and fell on a trolley wire just as an unidentified gentleman was crossing Canal street. The wire caught him about the throat and roasted him to death, people fearing to attempt a rescue.

Got the Drop on the Officer.

CLAREMONT, I. T., Dec. 10.—Deputy Marshal John Beard of this place was shot and instantly killed yesterday while attempting to arrest Jim Price, a local tough.

Fire In New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Fire which did a damage of $75,000 started last night in the 5-story building at 34 Greene street. M. Chambers, manufacturer of fur trimmings and garments, occupied it.

Cashier Gone.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 10.—Albert Whipple, cashier of the Crawford Banking company at Crawford, Neb., has absconded, and the bank is closed.

Glass Works Blaze.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Dec. 10.—The Shango glass works, owned by Knox, Foltz & Co., yesterday sustained a loss of about $100,000 by fire.

THE launching of the new ocean liner, the "St. Louis," is the direct result of the partial extension of the postal subsidies to American steamship companies that was advocated by Postmaster General Wanamaker. Had such a policy been adopted a quarter of a century ago, and maintained in accordance with the growth of the country, the American merchant marine would by this time have been of presentable size. Our shipbuilders can build the vessels, but the capital that orders and uses them must be placed upon the same footing as the steamship owners of foreign countries, who, while paying lower rates of wages to their sailors than we do, receive substantial subsidies from their respective governments.

THE Terre Haute Express says that a well known trade axiom should be amended to read, "Goods well bought are half sold, and if well advertised are all sold."

THEY are having the deuce of a time in New York over a priest by the name of Ducey. He persists in attending the Lexow investigation, and his bishop is determined he shall not. So far the priest has the best of the battle.

If the Christmas shoppers of ten years ago will take a moment or two to compare the shopping of then and now, they will realize how vast is the difference between the two. The delicacies and beauties and dainties of the world and of the times are displayed in the shop windows of Greencastle and the wise shopkeeper is advertising such through the BANNER TIMES.

THE launching of the new ocean liner, the "St. Louis," is the direct result of the partial extension of the postal subsidies to American steamship companies that was advocated by Postmaster General Wanamaker. Had such a policy been adopted a quarter of a century ago, and maintained in accordance with the growth of the country, the American merchant marine would by this time have been of presentable size. Our shipbuilders can build the vessels, but the capital that orders and uses them must be placed upon the same footing as the steamship owners of foreign countries, who, while paying lower rates of wages to their sailors than we do, receive substantial subsidies from their respective governments.

GREENCASTLE'S VIGILANTS.

They Capture Polish Jews, Wagons, Bears and Other Articles.

A party of Polish Jews have been camping about in various localities in Putnam county and last week pitched their tents in the suburbs of Greencastle. They were a shiftless, worthless lot and would practice all kinds of small thefts and meanness when in a neighborhood. They camped on Saturday near the Irvin, Robe, Bridges, Dietrick neighborhood three miles east of the city. Fences were let down and the bony horses of the travelers were driven into the pastures of these men; hen roosts were robbed and the chickens were being played generally. The land-owners got tired of it all and determined to call a halt. On Saturday night a party of them heavily armed loaded up a two-horse wagon with double-barrelled shot-guns, revolvers, cannon, anvils, sky rockets and Wm. Callahan, the constable, and set sail for the east. They surrounded the gang and ordered them to move, at once. They demurred but Mr. Callahan and the law were on the side of the attacking party and the campers decided to move. They picked up cooking utensils, camping outfits, babies and other paraphernalia and drove to the city under escort of the shot-guns of the vigilant committee. To belated pedestrians on Saturday night, the caravan was anything but a pleasing spectacle and several east-enders turned their backs on the spectacle and chased down side-streets.

One man, with a jag, who had been seeing strange sights all evening, swore the white caps had come to town and that he thought they were his especial meat. He may be running yet. The party drove right through the city and their escorts dismissed them at the south corporation line of the city, with the admonition not to stop short of fifteen miles. The tramps agreed not to pause until they got to Brazil. They had three grizzly bears. A wedding festival had been arranged among the Jews as two of them were to get married on Sunday. Three kegs of beer were taken out to the camp on Saturday, but the visit of the vigilants in the evening prevented the picnic. It will probably be given with due pomp and ceremony at Brazil.

Too Many Threes Against Him.

If a man is physically ill he tackles a doctor; if feeling unwell spiritually he visits a minister; but if his reputation is at stake he hunts up the editor. On Saturday a man from the country shuffled into this sanctum and after shifting about uneasily for several moments poured his tale of woe into the sympathetic ear of the editor. He whispered that he had taken three drinks of Greencastle whiskey and had been floored; arrested, jailed and fined. He said it was his third visit to Greencastle and the third time he had been drunk, his fine and costs made nearly three times three dollars in total, and that the "Big 3" the mayor, the marshal and the prosecutor, had treated him very well considering all things. He convinced the editor that there was an unlucky combination of threes against him and he was sent on his way rejoicing that his name would not be published in any of the three newspapers of Greencastle; for if the BANNER TIMES doesn't publish a thing it rarely breaks into the other papers. Beyond Comparison

Are the good qualities possessed by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Above all it purifies the blood, thus strengthening the nerves; it regulates the digestive organs, invigorates the kidneys and liver, tones and builds up the entire system, cures scrofula, dyspepsia, catarrh and rheumatism. Get Hood's and only Hood's.

Hood's Pills cure all liver ills, biliousness, jaundice, indigestion, sick headache. 25c.

The Weather.

The indications for this vicinity for the coming thirty-six hours are as follows as received by H. S. Renick & Co. from the official weather bureau at Indianapolis: INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 10, 1894.

Heavy rains today and tonight, Tuesday clearing and slightly colder. MOORE

The Mayor's Court.

Mayor Birch's court was crowded with affidavits, warrants and subpoenas this morning. There was some business on hand also, as some action had been had on Saturday night.

The first cases to face Mr. Birch's desk was a brotherly affair. Marion and Douglas Carpenter, living in the country, were arraigned for intoxication. They came in on Saturday and tickled their jugular tubes with frummenti with the usual result. They made a partial settlement in court today.

On Saturday night about eleven o'clock Marshal Starr and Policeman Donohue were on a hot scent of a crap game. They suspected the lair was located in the City Hall block and made preparations for a raid. They ascended the steps quietly, but some stool-pigeon had been shadowing them, and in order to warn the inmates, fired a rock through a window of the room in which the suspected players were located. This not very gentle warning was sufficient, and when the officers entered the room no game was in process. They fled against Richard Boling and Wm. Bass, both colored, charging them with gaming. There was a motley array of boys there, and a search brought forth "crap" tools. The defendants were called in mayor's court today and will have a hearing tomorrow. In the mean time several boys who will be witnesses are doing the "Shaker" act.

Notice to Citizens.

THROOP & DOWNS, Compilers.

The New York Recorder says: "Chopin's 'Scherzo,' most beautifully played by M. Lachau, took the audience by storm." One of great American critics says: "M. Lachau has fine intelligence, excellent phrasing and the power of discriminative emphasis; he has also a pearly touch and admirable technique." There will be a fine audience in Meharry hall tomorrow evening of the lovers of artistic singing and splendid pianoforte playing. Tickets with reserved seats now on sale in music hall for this concert, also for the entire artists course. 49-It

A local weather prophet who has great confidence in his prophetic powers and who does not remember ever having admitted a miss, predicts a mild winter. He bases his belief on the uncommon number of angle worms to be seen on the surface of the ground and on the pavements these mornings. Angle worms visible in December, he says, have never failed to be a precursor of a mild winter. If it was going to be cold they would instinctively go deep under the surface.—Brazil Democrat.

Prof. Roche finished his engagement in this city on Saturday evening in grand style. The audience was one of the largest ever seen in the hall and seats were at a premium. The crowning event of the evening was the rock-breaking test which has caused much comment during the past week. After the entertainment Prof. Roche gave an oyster supper to his subjects who had aided him during his stay here. Prof. Roche will be here for a few nights next month and give an entertainment for the benefit of the DePauw Athletic association.

The holiday number of Town Topics differs from the holiday editions of other publications in the fact that its publishers have relied upon the excellence of its literary contents instead of illustrations to attract and enthrall the purchaser. The Christmas Town Topics is a handsome book of 64 pages, 48 of which are the choicest reading matter procurable, the whole being contained in an alluring colored lithographed cover. Poems and stories by the best authors of the day, including Bret Harte, Walter Besant, Bliss Carman, etc., etc., are interspersed with the quips, bright witticisms and dainty, pert sketches from which this publication has earned its reputation. There are also a number of ably written reviews by members of the staff. The number is one that will ornament any library table, and that, aside from the literary excellence of its contents, is well worthy of preservation as a comely souvenir of the merry season. The big hunting party which was to take everything before it to day, was postponed on account of the very inclement weather.

A class in gymnasium work is waiting for an instructor now and also the privilege of working in our gymnasium. This last is rather queer.

The third university lecture of this season was delivered in Meharry hall last evening by Dr. H. J. Talbott, presiding elder of Indianapolis district. He delivered a very fine sermon from the text "And Daniel was the first," which was justly appreciated by the large audience which packed the hall. The people appreciate Rev. Talbott very much.

One of the most exciting foot ball games of the season was played at the park Saturday by the class teams of '96 and '97. Any one who ever saw or heard of a class game can easily guess at the result—a draw. The crowd became so excited that the game was stopped several times until the field could be cleared. The game was hard fought all the way through and the rocky decisions made by the referees were the causes of the final result. '97 played the best game and indeed earned a touch down as fairly as a touch down was ever made but it seems the other class had the influence with the umpire and the ball was carried back 25 yards. On the next decision the sophs would not be hornsogged and so refused to finish the game; '96 never could have scored but '97 did entirely wrong in not finishing the game as only a few minutes were left and the score would have been 0-0. We ought to have had the game in October then we might have had a better team for 'varsity.

New Tariff and Income Tax Law.—The German tariff law, passed recently by congress, has been republished by the Tribune in pamphlet form, 52 pages, giving the language of the act in full, and comparing its rates with those of the McKinley bill. This is the only complete and accurate comparison of the two laws. The pamphlet also contains the new income tax law, which congress ordered to take effect January 1, 1895. The new rates of duty have discouraged agriculture, lowered wages, decreased the revenue, and frightened employers. Every reflecting man will find, first in the threat of this legislation, and next its actuality, the source of the hard times. 10 cents a copy. For sale at the BANNER TIMES office. d&w-11

TOO LATE.

By CHARLES B. LEWIS (M. QUAD).

[Copyright, 1894, by Charles B. Lewis.]

In the province of Nepal, India, on a branch of the Ganges, having its rise in the Himalaya mountains and situated about 60 miles to the northeast of the historical city of Lucknow, are the ruins of Khoten. Here was the palace of a rajah, or chief, who was at the zenith of his glory and power when the mutiny of 1857 broke out. He was an old man, and for a quarter of a century he had been plotting and conspiring against the English, though outwardly pretending the greatest and strongest friendship. When the mutiny broke out, the English believed this chief would prove loyal, and for several weeks his assurances and declarations to that effect were relied on. When he had collected his forces and was ready to take the field, he joined the mutineers and became a merciless foe. While he was making ready for war and professing friendship he received into his palace a score or more of English fugitives—men, women and children. He protected these people for several weeks and promised to send them away to a place of safety, but one morning, when he was ready to throw off the mask, he assembled them in a large room and made the announcement that all were to be slaughtered.

Among the men was a young Englishman named Benner, who was attached to the civil service. For some reason he had been given more liberty than the other men, and in his wanderings about he had discovered where the powder magazine was situated. In telling his story he said that he had reason to suspect what was going to happen, but that all the other prisoners firmly believed in the rajah's friendship. When assembled together, they supposed they were to be sent off into the mountains, and all were in good spirits. The announcement that all were to be put to death struck everybody dumb with surprise and terror for the moment. The prisoners were left alone for a quarter of an hour to bid each other goodby. Not one of the men exhibited unusual emotion, and not a woman wept nor a child cried out.

One after another the men were taken out until only Benner was left. Each one was shot to death, and the sound of the firearms was plainly heard by those who waited. As Benner was led out and across a courtyard a thirst for vengeance suddenly came to him. Hardly realizing what he did, he dashed the guards aside and bounded across the courtyard, fled through two or three rooms to the magazine, and without waiting an instant he struck a light and flung it into an open keg of powder. Men had been at work in the magazine making cartridges, but had been called out to assist in shooting the prisoners, and the doors had been left open behind them. The explosion shook down a stone building covering a full acre of ground and being from one to three stories in height, and whatever would burn at once took fire and was consumed. The inclosure, which was guarded by walls 12 feet high, covered about ten acres. There were half a dozen smaller buildings and two or three other magazines. Each of the latter exploded in turn, and the results are to be seen today. Only 40 feet of the wall is standing, and not one of the buildings escaped destruction.

While the rajah ordered the murder of the prisoners he did not remain to witness it, but rode away at the head of 2,000 men to join the mutineers before Lucknow. Of the 250 people left behind Benner was the only one known to have escaped, though it is probable that a number of the natives did so and were afterward killed in the various engagements. That the man who fired the magazine should not have been blown to fragments is considered a miracle. When he recovered consciousness, it was night, and he was in a sort of cave made by blocks of stone falling over and around him. He was naked, badly burned and deaf as a stone.

For the next four weeks he could not articulate a word, and for several months he was little better than a blind man. He dug his way out of the ruins, but did not leave them for three weeks, and he was five weeks more crawling over the country before he found a British outpost. The rajah was killed at Lucknow, the territory in which his palace was situated was occupied by the British, and there was no talk of treasure until after the mutiny in that district had been put down and law and order restored. Then the authorities granted the privilege of a search for "loot," and no less than three efforts were made to unearth something. The fourth official treasure searching company was organized in 1864, and it is the particulars of that search I am going to relate.

The acres of ruins were now almost hidden in the forest which had sprung up, and if any one were still living who knew the location of the treasure room, or whether it really contained a dollar at the time of the explosion, he would not be found. As the spot was miles from any town or village and on the main highway, the treasure might have long ago been removed by natives. We had to take our chances on all points. One-fourth of what we found was to go to the government, and we were to bear all the expenses of the digging and delving and pay the salary of a government official to watch our progress and see that we did not make a find and cheat the government.

There were five of us in the company—three British officers residing at Lucknow and two Americans. We put in $1,000 each, purchased a steam engine and tools and hoisting apparatus, and one morning 40 natives were set to work. The ruins had been carefully gone over several times. Benner was brought down from Calcutta and taken out there to give us such pointers as he could, and it had been determined to remove the entire heap of rubbish representing the palace, if necessary. We built a tramway 250 feet long to the brink of a ravine, and beginning work on the east side of the ruins we hoisted up the stones with engine and tackle, loaded them on carts and dumped them into the deep gully and well out of the way. It took a whole week to clear off and burn up the trees and underbrush, and while engaged in this work we routed out a tiger, several hyenas and killed upward of a dozen cobras.

The central part of the palace was three stories high and ornamented with towers, and it was reasonable to believe that the treasure room would be under this portion. The other searchers had the same theory, but here was a pile of debris 50 feet long by as many wide and 30 feet high. All the stones were in huge blocks, not to be moved by hand, and their attempts to tunnel into the mass had proved fruitless. The real work began at the top of this heap. Where the blocks were too large for our tackle we reduced them by blasting, and foot by foot we reduced the height and worked our way down. We had been on the ground about 30 days when a native who was a stranger to that locality appeared and seemed greatly interested in our doings.

He soon learned our object and investigated the results thus far accomplished, and the next thing we knew he had gone into camp on the western edge of the ruins and had collected a large number of natives about him. We had a title to the ruins for the time being, but he was not on our ground, and when he gave out that his errand was to gather medicinal roots and herbs for market we gave him no more attention. From the big ravine into which we dumped the debris there was a smaller one leading back to the heap on which we were at work. Its depth we could not see because of the trees and bushes, and we did not explore it. On two or three different occasions some of our native workmen reported that the natives employed by the herman were working in this gully, but such reports neither interested us nor gave rise to any investigation.

About 60 days after the herman established camp he and his entire party suddenly disappeared one night, and they were so cautious in their going that none of us knew of it. If he wanted to go that way, that was his business, however. It had been his habit to come over to our camp every evening and note the progress we had made during the day. He was a fluent and interesting talker, and he told us many tales and legends which I have since seen in print as original matter. In a careless way he would report what he was doing also. He exhibited certain roots which he said could be found in no other spot for miles around, and his talk was to the effect that he would make a good thing of his two months' work. I was in his camp three or four times, but saw neither roots nor herbs. I ought to have suspected something from this, but the man was so open and frank that it never occurred to me he might be working a scheme. We did not expect to finish our work under four months, as we were to make a clean sweep of the debris and uncover all the cellar. We were about 130 days clearing up and getting down. The cellar had been divided into as many as 30 different rooms, but the explosion had blown down many walls and reduced the number to six or seven. One of these was a dungeon with six cells in it, and in three of the cells we found the skeletons of prisoners who had perished there by starvation.

WE DESCENDED TO THE TREASURE ROOM.

I should have told you before that as we dug down and cleared away the courtyard we came upon skeleton after skeleton, 50 or more in all. In every case they were carefully removed, and those which a surgeon pronounced to be the remains of an Englishman, woman or child were sent to Lucknow for burial. In some instances enough clothing remained to make identification positively certain. As near as we could figure out, none of the women and children had been led out when the explosion came, and all met their death at the same instant. It was death, to be sure, but a more merciful one than the treacherous natives had in store for them.

In the winerom we found the remains of perhaps a thousand bottles which had held wine at the time of the explosion. The concussion had shattered every one of them as well as many jars and jugs, and the staves and heads of a number of barrels had rotted to mold. There was a room which seemed to have been devoted exclusively for the storage of clothing. The rajah had a uniform of his own design for his soldiers, and although he must have clothed a large number of them before marching away there was a great amount left. This clothing was represented by stacks of mold, as the rains of years had soaked down through the debris. All we got from that room was a few buttons and buckles to be handed around as relics. The treasure room, according to the way we argued, should be situated below the basement, or cellar, containing the rooms, and access to it could be had only from the rajah's private apartments, and for several days we were at fault, and the work came to a standstill. Then we came upon what appeared to be a solid block of masonry about eight feet square by as many in height. A little investigation showed that this block had once run up much higher, but had been shortened by the explosion. We removed the dozen great blocks heaped together over its top and then shouted in exultation. It was a hollow column or block, and inside of it was a staircase of wood which the fire had only partly consumed. We knew in a minute that these stairs were used by the rajah to reach his treasure room, and we would not have sold our chances at the "loot" for $50,000 in gold.

A quarter of an hour later we were a chagrined and chafed crowd. We descended to the treasure room to find it empty. That wouldn't have been so hard to bear, for we were working on chance, but we had the proofs before our eyes that the room had been visited by others at no distant date. The herman had pulled the wool over our eyes in great shape. Instead of gathering roots and herbs, his workmen had dug into the ruins from the gully and opened up and robbed the treasure room. There was the tunnel, but when we asked each other where the treasure was no man could answer.

Had there been any treasure to take away? I answer that there had been plate and jewels and precious stones to the amount of many thousands of dollars. The rajah had probably used all his ready money to get his troops in the field, but at that time, with war raging all over India, he could not have disposed of the other stuff if he had tried.

We did not lose an hour in putting the government authorities on the herman's track. Within three days we had five of the natives who worked for him, and the story they told made us madder than ever. They declared he had taken out enough treasure to load two horses, and as he had presented every man with about $20 in money and sworn them to secrecy the tale had to go down. He was pursued to Delhi, where he sold $14,000 worth of gems; to Agra, where he sold about $6,000 worth; to Gwalior, where he exhibited dozens of them, but made no sale, and there all trace of him was lost. He got away with at least $100,000 worth of "loot," which he somehow knew was under the ruins, and for our four months' work we had the consolation of paying out nearly $5,000 in good money and losing our time to boot.

How to Carry Money About.

A man is safe from pickpockets if he carries his money in his trousers pocket, says an experienced detective. A hip pocket is simply a delusion. The breast pocket is no safer when the coat is buttoned, because the man who is after the money located there has only to slit the cloth with a sharp little knife blade set in a ring. Carry money in the right trousers pocket, and it will never be picked. As for jewelry, when in a crowd twist the watch chain around the left thumb or index finger and don't let go, no matter what happens. A man is lucky if he wears a diamond pin for a year, no matter what safety attachments it has. Some thief will even cut off a portion of the necktie to get it. Beware of rushes, jostling in a crowd. In a crowd it is better to be pushed or even a little hurt than put up your hands.

Electricity For Hay Fever.

It is now claimed that no victim of the perennial "hay fever" or "nose cold" need suffer longer. Electricity does the business every time by killing certain nerves located in the offending nose. To think that a cold in the head is a matter of nerves, wretched little nerves that submerge the human being in the most ignominious malady known in physiology! Special microbes are ever on the watch for these susceptible and altogether devilish organs, and their removal is certainly a triumph of modern science, though perhaps the microbes will not view it in that light.—Boston Herald.

She Talked Around the World.

It is rather unusual for a woman of 52 years to take a journey around the globe alone. Yet that has been done by Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt of Boston. She spent eight years in carrying the temperance gospel to the women of every land, speaking through interpreters in many nations and organizing Woman's Christian Temperance unions even in heathen countries among missionaries and converts. For five years she never saw a familiar face, endured many hardships and some sickness in China and Africa, but today she retains her wonderful powers of body and brain.—Boston Letter.

Rough on the Fowls, Though.

In buying fowls a word of advice to the purchasing housewives may be in order. If the poultry is obtained from a farmer, instruct him to leave it without food for 12 hours before killing. If this is done, the intestines and gizzard are empty, and the task of drawing is made much easier and more cleanly.
